Collaborative Professional Learning to Support Vermont Schools

Maker Space Solutions to Supporting Portfolios, Proficiencies, and PLPs

An Administrator Hands-On Workshop

Facilitated by: Lucie DeLaBruere

Target Audience: Building and District Leaders

- Why and how can having a space for making in your school provide students with an opportunity to develop transferable skills?
- How can it create evidence of proficiencies for portfolios?
- How can it provide flexible pathways for their personal learning plans?
- How can you as a leader support innovation through making?

This day-long workshop will include hands-on experience with maker-centered learning tools and processes that support student growth in transferable skills.

As a participant, you will see and experience the learning design first hand. We'll also examine student evidence from Vermont schools as well as research summaries about the benefits of maker-centered learning. Learn how other leaders have brought maker education experiences into their schools and the difference it is making.
