Audience: Building and District Level Leaders, School Board Members

The worlds of technology and artificial intelligence (AI) are changing fast!

Join us for a hands-on, active workshop on how building and district-level leaders should be thinking about AI. Through a series of practice-based scenarios, we will explore both implementation and policy considerations, and see if we can also maybe make our administrative lives a little easier and more productive.

Attendees will walk away with a number of useful resources and ideas for sparking conversations in their local communities.

Let's roll up our sleeves and dive into both the possibilities and pitfalls of these powerful digital tools. Please bring a computer and a willingness to be an engaged participant.

About our presenter:

A Professor of Educational Leadership at the University of Colorado Denver, Scott McLeod, J.D., Ph.D., is widely recognized as one of the nation's leading experts on P-12 school leadership, deeper learning, technology, and innovation. He is on a mission to make students' day-to-day learning less boring and more meaningful and relevant. Scott is the Founding Director of the UCEA Center for the Advanced Study of Technology Leadership in Education \(CASTLE\), the only university center in the U.S. dedicated to the technology needs of school administrators, and is the co-creator of both the wildly popular video series, Did You Know? \(Shift Happens\), and the 4 Shifts Protocol for lesson and unit redesign.
